Just as Canada celebrates the 100th anniversary of its 100th anniversary, it is proud to mark the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the Gur Sikh Temple, Vancouver, British Columbia.

The ceremony is a National Historic Site, was built between 1912 and 1913 by pioneering immigrants from India. The temple was built under the leadership of the late Gurmehar Singh, the founder of the temple.

To mark the occasion, the Centre for Indo-Canadian Studies, Vancouver, and the Gur Sikh Temple, Vancouver, are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the temple's foundation with a series of events and programs.

"It is an amazing experience to see the temple's construction," she said. "I'm proud to see the temple's foundation in the 100th anniversary of Canada's 100th anniversary. The celebration will be held on the TV night 11."

"We will have a series of events to mark the occasion where we are going to the temple," she added. "We don't get to do that very much. It's an honor to be able to do that. It's a chance to mark the 100th anniversary of the temple's foundation. We will be celebrating the 100th anniversary of the temple's foundation."

She added that there were three things about the temple that she loved. "The architecture, the way it was built, and the way it was built."

"There are lots of people who are interested in the temple's history and culture, and we are proud to see that. There are many people who are interested in the temple's history and culture, and we are proud to see that. There are many people who are interested in the temple's history and culture, and we are proud to see that."

There are also the Indian. There are Indian who are interested in the temple's history and culture, and we are proud to see that.
